A superb slate-like roof at very affordable prices - giving you the opportunity to use more of your budget to deliver high internal specs...

It's great news that the housing sector is now looking a lot more positive than in recent years.

But, as you will know, budgets are still under great pressure. And, because of this, what you sometimes would like to do, isn't always possible.

Well, I have some good news for you today. Maybe a lot of it is possible, after all.

The Edgemere range of interlocking slates look tremendous and deliver outstanding performance - at a price that's very attractive indeed. They come in three finishes and a range of colours - and are up to 40% thinner than standard interlocking tiles. The range allows you to deliver a fabulous roof at a much reduced cost.

On top of all that, they offer a reduced laid weight, excellent covering capacity - and they can also be laid at pitches as low as 17.5 degrees. And that's not all. Edgemere tiles enjoy an A+ rating in the BRE Green Guide, plus BES 6001 standard certification. This means extra credits under the BREEAM family of environmental assessment schemes.

Yes, with Edgemere, you can have that slate-like appearance on the roof- but at a much reduced cost, allowing you to spend more on the internal specs of the house.

So, why not send for the brand new Edgemere 2014 brochure just out and see for yourself the enormous benefits this superb range of tiles can offer you? It's full of new photography, and valuable cross-sector case studies including education, health care and social housing - and much, much more.
